Disability Meets Web Accessibility

EAST LANSING, MI, (August 31st, 2020) -- On Friday, September 11th from 12:15 PM – 1:00 PM, Chris Knapp, Owner and Managing member at Knapp Strategic will present an overview of accessibility and usability on the Web. Through his blog, Tales of the Reluctant Blind, Chris has created a platform for helping advance the important conversation about different accessibility and disability-related topics. He founded Accessiversity, a lab service where actual individuals with disabilities perform tests to provide for an authentic assessment of web systems to offer a better sense of how individuals with disabilities, who often use assistive technology to access digital content, will interact with their website or systems.

During the September 11th Lunch and Learn, Knapp will provide a high-level overview of his Web Accessibility 101 training that goes over some of the basic "do's and don'ts" of designing accessible web sites from a user experience perspective.

When: Friday, September 11, 2020   12:15 PM – 1:00 PM

Where: Zoom Meeting. Please contact jca@ajboggs.com for meeting details
